POOJA PURI

Her artistic vision and style finds expression in geometric shapes and abstract forms, communicating a symbolic relevance between two art forms “The Intuitive” and “The Structured.” This artistic expression has taken shape in a body of work titled “Genesis From Chaos”.

The series consists of an abstract textural oil painting , which is kinetic, spontaneous, and disorderly, paired along side geometric paintings taking form of shapes and biomorphic patterns.

“Genesis From Chaos” captures her versatility as an Artist, emphasising a range of emotions from energetic to sublime and rational to mystical.

Her flowers seem to ooze warmth from her canvas, a quality that mirrors her personality. With the abundance of bright hues and creamy backgrounds, each painting represents a gentle vision of spreading cheer and happiness like that artist feels. It is rare that an artist today feels the need to do something uncomplicated and simple, but we must cherish it as it is something that is much needed.

She takes little interest in the form and character of the individual flowers but rather refers to the work as a cathartic experience of healing and transcendence.

Her interest evolved into passion, earning her various spots at prestigious art fairs such as “Art Expo Malaysia”, “Art Stage Singapore”, “affordable Art fairs” and locations such as Finland, Dubai, Jakarta, India, Malaysia, and Singapore. She has had her own solo shows in Singapore. She has regular demonstrations and workshops held in local and international schools in Singapore.

SHYAMA NADIMPALLI

Her paintings capture the essence of female (mostly) dancers in the fluidity of their movement. Her inspiration for these paintings lies in the elegance and grace of dancers as they move effortlessly, and the signature Red colour symbolises passion and love. These paintings depict what it must feel like to break away from things holding us down and to let go. To continue exploring her creativity, she added an element of surrealism and abstraction into her artworks.

Her landscape paintings, are very enticing, present a unique playfulness with an array of beautiful colors and symbols that attribute to the era of romanticism.

Her works tell vivid stories of moments in life that leave a long impression to come.
